

Expectations

Most of us have expectations that we consider reasonable. Sometimes our expectations are met. Other times we are disappointed.

1. I have my own work goals for the workday.

- Someone else gives me their work to do on top of my work.
- People don't follow through with their part of the plan.
- Someone gets sick and I need to pick up the slack.
- I meet my goals early.

2. I help someone with money when they are struggling.

- They are grateful and say thank you
- They take the money and squander it.
- They are grateful and pay me back with interest.

3. I have a plan to relax recoup energy and recharge.

- My spouse has a long “honey-do” for me to work on.
- I am able to “play” and enjoy the entire day.
- My child “acts up” and I have to devote energy to that.
- An emergency arises that I should help with.

4. I make plans to help with a church event.

- I show up early but most people are late.
- I do my best but people complain anyway.
- The event goes well and is deeply fulfilling.

5. I need to drive somewhere.

- My car starts... or maybe it doesn't.
- The roads are clear... or maybe they aren't.
- I drive to the correct location but...

How do you feel when your expectations are... Exceeded? Met? Fall short?

And how do you act when that happens?

Do your actions align with God's expectations?
